THE COURT ALSO COMES IN.

Burmester waxes Eloquent on the Outrage of Bringing Men 200 Miles on Trivial Charges.

Deputy Marshal Cannon returned yescertay from a trip to Emery county, where he arrested George C. Whitmore, George McCall and Frank Morehouse on the charge of exhibiting a deadly weapon. It is understood that on October 29, the defendants, who are sheep men, had some difficulty with L. A. Scott Elliot, and this charge was the result. The parties were taken before Cammissioner Greenman in the afternoon, John M. Zane prosecuting, and Mr. Burmester defending. The latter moved for a dismissal on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction over the case of the statement that the worth more, and the propose to use the Western as a connecting link to the coast, and J. Dodge, general manager of the western, and a continued to the We moved for a dismissal on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction over the case, but the motion was overruled. Before the case came up for hearing, however, Zane filed what he called an "amendment" to the complaint, but which was, in fact, a new complaint, charging the defendants with riot. Burmester objected to this and made the air bine with his invectives against what he termed dragging men 200 miles from home on some trivial charge, and then amending it from a misdemeanor to a felony. The court finally refused to allow this to be filed as an amendment, but accepted it as a new complaint. Mr. Zane then made some remark at which Burmester took umbrage and advancing toward him he thundered out, "If this pompous individual thinks he can run his whole case, he is mistaken. He can run his and The court finally refused to he is mistaken. He can run his end but I'll take mighty good care that he Immediately after this Burmester had a tilt with the court. The latter took the view that the first offense charged was one view that the first offense charged was one which he could not determine, but only try as committing magistrate, while Burmester insisted that he could determine it and remarked that he could determine it and remarked that he and the court were ronning on different lines, and he would see who was right.

Commissioner Groenman took this as a reflection upon him and said, somewhat warmly, "I don't want any more of that, I want you to understand that you cannot cannot cast reflections on this court with impunity." Burmester denied having any such intention, and at the same impunity." Burmester denied having any such intention, and at the same time drew from his pocket the usual affidavit, asking for a change of venue. Commissioner Greenman refused to allow this, and remarked that some of these days he would require the party making such an affidavit to go on the stand and demonstrate how much foundation he had for the things he swore to, and if he had sworn falsely, he would be punished.

Mr. Zane then filed another complaint against the defendants of the same transfer.

would be punished.

Mr. Zane then filed another complaint against the defendants charging them with threatening to shoot L. A. Scott Elliot. Orson Pace and George W. Richmond. At this Mr. Whitmore grew somewhat indignant and said Elliot and his crowd would have a long reckoning to meet before they were through with the matter.

The examination has finally been set for December 18, and the defendants were released upon furnishing bonds in the sum of $500 each to secure their appearance at that time.

In the case of Frank Manly, charged with assault with a deadly weapon, the amount of bonds was reduced to $300.

The case of Whitiam Douglas vs. Mark McKimmins was reinstated on the docket. In the afternoon the big damage case of Howard Condrow vs. the Cactus Mining company came up for trial, Marshall & Royle appearing for the defendant, and Sutherland & Judd and Dickson & Stone for the Daintiff. It appears that Woodrow owns a large number of shares in the Cactus company, and some time are he arranged to zell some of his steck in Paris, but as his shares were in large blocks, he applied repeatedly to the officers of the company to cut them up into small blocks so that he might dispose of them. This request, though urged persistently, was always refused, and Mr. Woodrow finally brought this suit to recover $42,000 damages. The case will not go to the jury before to-night. fore to-night.

In the afternoon the case of S. H. B. Smith, charged with violating the ordinance recently passed prohibiting the keeping of more than three cows by one person within certain limits of this city, came up. No question was made as to the defendant having violated the ordinance, but Judge Loof-berough attacked the validy of the ordinance. The case was argued by the prosecution by Mr. Echinor, and the court took the matter under advisement. In the meantime, Mr. Smith has to remove his cows.

The opera house band was out, twenty pieces strong, and played some thrilling quicksteps. At about 8 o'clock the opera house was packed and the deafsning applaase that greeted the People's repre-sentative as he came forward upon the stage, must have satisfied his ambitions on that score. It is to be hoped that the Southern Paci-fic mean what they say—that they intend cannot be commenced any too soon-Herald.

There is not one of any size excepting Reno, and that isn't much. All these things, together with the fact that the amount of labor and expense to swing their main line right into Brigham would be trifling, form a myth which only the open declaration of the company one way or the other can clear up. They may already have too much business and don't want ours. It looks that way; but we can hardly believe that.

A Ghost as a Witness.

There was once a "ghost in court" con-

Since then the phantoms have not troubled the high court very much. But there is an action pending, all about a will, in which a specter forms a leading feature, and will possibly be called as a witness. A ghost in the witness box would cause a forensic sensation of the first order, and would "clear the court"

more speedily than the efforts of a dozen ushers. The way in which the phantom "comes in" to this particular case seems to be that the testator, being dissatisfied

with his testamentary dispositions, revisited earth by the glimpses of the moon

told the sexton all about it. "But," and

Lord Justice Bowen pertinently inquired, "can what a ghost says to a sex-

roboration, but we knew from 'Silas

Marne' that 'ghostesses' do not care about being believed in by the hopelessly 'ignorant.'"—London Telegraph.
